MISSION
The NFL Player Care Foundation (PCF) is an independent organization dedicated to helping retired players improve their quality of life. PCF addresses all aspects of life by providing programs and assistance with medical, emotional, financial, social, and community issues.
Just as it has for nearly every organization around the world, this past year has presented a unique set of challenges and opportunities for the Player Care Foundation. I am proud that our Foundation’s evolving programming and responsiveness to current events shined through during some of our country’s most difficult moments.

We established the PCF COVID-19 Disaster Relief Fund, allowing the Player Care Foundation to assist over 500 former players and their families during one of the greatest crises of our lifetimes. I want to commend our staff for the remarkable commitment, care, and collaboration they showed as we stepped up to serve former players impacted by the COVID-19 shutdown. This enormous undertaking would not have been possible without the assistance provided by our allies in the NFL Management Council, Gridiron Greats, and the Pro Football Hall of Fame to help us respond to former players in a timely manner.

We continued to expand our mental health efforts and career-focused programming during this past fiscal year. Before temporarily postponing all Healthy Body & Mind Screenings due to COVID-19, a new mental health consultation was offered to players at screenings in response to the heightened awareness around mental health in our communities. We also hosted the incredibly successful second annual Super Bowl Career Fair, with 115 former players in attendance to recruit and network with 34 participating employers. Players expressed interest to continue the dialogue with recruiters and be informed of job opportunities on a year-round basis beyond the annual Career Fair, to which we delivered with the creation of the online PCF Career Portal.

During this past year we have become more of a data-driven Foundation, continuing to measure the impact of our financial grants and better understand the community of former players we work with so our programming can best meet their needs. The Player Care Foundation has evolved not just as a Foundation for financial grant assistance, but rather a central community of resources to assist former NFL players.

With confidence and enthusiasm, I am eager to watch our Foundation continue to grow with each year.

Belinda Lerner
Executive Director, NFL Player Care Foundation
“I traveled all the way to Miami from my home in Canada for the Player Care Foundation Super Bowl Career Fair. I enjoyed re-connecting with old teammates, seeing the tremendous amount of opportunities out there, and networking with employers. I was able to build relationships and follow up with recruiters after the event. It’s much needed and appreciated to see an organization like the Player Care Foundation work with our fraternity of former NFL players to help us in life after football. The Career Fair gave me a sense of hope and empowerment that opportunities are available. I look forward to coming back to the Super Bowl Career Fair every year to see the number of job opportunities and employers grow.”

“I had no clue about the Player Care Foundation’s disaster relief program. When I learned of it, I immediately applied and began working with Dana Lihan. I explained everything going on in my life, and Dana was open and honest throughout the entire process. In the end, this grant was extremely helpful for me in a variety of ways. Most importantly, with uncertainty worldwide, PCF allowed me to be dependable and to continue providing for my kids. As a father, you always want to be that strong figure who provides, and in this case, every little bit of assistance went a long way.”

Through charitable grants from the NFL Foundation and the generous contributions from several NFL clubs and alliance members, the Player Care Foundation continues its financial assistance to former NFL players and their families who are in dire need. Since the first financial hardship grant in 2008, the Player Care Foundation has contributed over $18.2 million to 1,925 former NFL players to assist in their day to day living expenses, coordinated medical care, and mental health resources. In the most recent fiscal year the Player Care Foundation has distributed over $1.2 million in financial grants to 186 former players.

Player Care Foundation grant applications adhere to the Foundation’s financial and NFL service time eligibility requirements and are considered on a case-by-case basis. Eligible retirees include NFL players with at least one credited season or two seasons as a practice squad player. Widows and children of deceased former NFL players, who would otherwise be eligible for support, may also apply.

“Player Care Foundation has been there for my family and me during times when I’ve needed help the most. I’ve dealt with nagging injuries and horrible pain ever since my career ended. I applied for a PCF financial grant, and Valon Alford guided me through the process. She was very helpful and empathetic the entire time. The grant process was so smooth and the experience allowed me to purchase medical equipment which has significantly decreased my pain levels. That, in turn, has also improved my mental health and physical abilities. I know lots of former players are out there searching for resources, and I want them to know PCF is the answer we’ve been searching for. Again, I want to express my deepest gratitude to PCF and all the individuals that assisted me through this process, which has tremendously changed my life for the better.”

In March of 2020, the World Health Organization declared Covid-19 a global pandemic. In the months that followed, the economic, social and emotional effects were felt across the globe and former players were, unfortunately, not immune from the resulting adversities. The NFL Player Care Foundation responded efficiently and effectively, supporting former players as they navigated unprecedented financial, professional and personal challenges. Hundreds of former players benefited from an adapted and expedited application process and turnaround time. The Foundation’s small staff relentlessly led the response – incorporating a number of gracious volunteers from the NFL Management Council, Gridiron Greats and the Hall of Fame – hastily fielding over 1,000 inquiries in an effort to assist struggling former players. Ultimately, PCF distributed nearly $1.1 million to over 500 Legends and their families through its COVID-19 Disaster Relief Program, accounting for the Foundation’s most historic cumulative effort to date. In unpredictable and unprecedented times, PCF embodied its mission statement by helping former players improve their overall quality of life.

“The Player Care Foundation’s Disaster Relief Program has been a godsend. Coincidentally, my wife and I learned of PCF’s Covid-19 response as businesses in our area were evaluating how the global pandemic would impact them. With lots of uncertainties and unknowns, I was let go from my job and needed some assistance. Shortly after that, I spoke with a PCF volunteer, who was an attorney with the Management Council. She helped me feel like I wasn’t alone and made it clear that other former players were experiencing a range of hardships, too. After speaking to this volunteer, I filled out the application and communicated with another helpful PCF staff member. A few days later, I was approved and a few days after that I received the financial assistance. It was a team effort – very professional and well run all the way around. Most of all, it was a tremendous relief.”

Since 2016, the Player Care Foundation has partnered with one of the nation’s premier medical providers – Tulane University School of Medicine – to conduct its Healthy Body and Mind Screening Program. Piloted in 2007, this program is a national screening program available to any former player who has ever been on an NFL roster. Each screening provides medical testing valued at up to $10,000, at no cost to attendees. The screening program, which takes approximately two hours, is held at a private facility and includes cardiovascular testing, prostate screenings and blood testing as well as a body composition analysis. These screenings have identified conditions which have inspired life-saving treatments for former players who were previously unaware of them.

Spouses and significant others of former players who accompany the attendees are invited to receive complimentary blood testing and meet with representatives from various entities who serve the retired player community to learn about benefits and resources. The Player Care Foundation also provides mental health resources and education to former players through these screenings.

The medical screenings are offered as part of the Player Care Foundation’s research efforts, helping to advance public awareness and scientific understanding of health issues affecting former NFL players. The medical data collected at the screenings is used and studied to draw conclusions regarding the health of this group of elite athletes. Research studies inspired by this collection of data have primarily focused on sleep apnea risk, cardiovascular risk and blood pressure, and have been presented at national and international medical conferences over the last five years.

Healthy Body and Mind Screenings are held in 10 locations annually, rotating each year to screen as many former players as possible. Since inception, the program has screened over 6,000 attendees in total. Screenings are consistently held at the Super Bowl, Draft, and during Hall of Fame Enshrinement in Canton, OH. While screenings were postponed in March of 2020 due to COVID-19, the Player Care Foundation continues working with public health experts to ensure future screenings with the implementation of social distancing and other precautionary measures.

“I have thoroughly enjoyed my experiences at the Player Care Foundation screenings. It is a great way to supplement regularly-scheduled doctor’s visits. There is comprehensive testing, which is helpful because there’s not always a siren that goes off when something is wrong in terms of one’s health. It was very well run, clean and efficient. If you need to speak to a doctor or have questions, someone is always there with an answer or to point you in the right direction. I also found that taking the results of the screening to my regular doctor’s visita makes my other appointments more worthwhile too. Finally, it’s a wonderful way to build community I always see guys I haven’t seen in a long time and meet with new former players. I’m grateful for this experience every time.”

The Player Care Foundation Career Program is in place to connect qualified former NFL players with job opportunities and career resources. In the past year, the Foundation created an online Career Portal to scale its career-focused efforts. The Player Care Foundation has partnered with NFL sponsors, broadcast networks, and other NFL allies to form a growing list of participating employers who want to see former NFL players thrive in their post-football careers. In addition to posting job opportunities from participating employers, the Career Portal provides former NFL players with access to resume and interview support.

In addition to the introduction of the Career Portal, the Player Care Foundation held its second annual Super Bowl Career Fair during the week of Super Bowl LIV in Miami, FL. Over 115 former players attended the event, where they were able to meet with 34 participating employers, receive resume reviews, and undergo interview training. Al Kelly, Chairman and CEO of Visa, provided a keynote address where he encouraged the participants to embrace their strengths as former athletes and provided tips on leadership and the value of hard work.
MENTAL & EMOTIONAL HEALTH

The mental health and well-being of former players remains foundational to the overall mission of the Player Care Foundation. By epitomizing respect, compassion, and confidentiality, PCF creates safe and comfortable spaces for former players to explore sensitive issues in their lives. PCF listens to the needs of the players and connects them to resources and services, ultimately helping them achieve their goals of improving their mental health and wellness.

Through the years, PCF has developed strong relationships with its partners at NFL Life Line, Cigna and the Eisenhower Center. These partners are major players in how clinical services, benefits and referrals are offered daily. The extensive mental and behavioral health efforts of PCF have evolved and increased throughout the years, and the Foundation now benefits from the presence of three full-time clinical social workers and one graduate social work intern helping former players navigate mental and behavioral health challenges/needs.

PCF also assists retired players through its mental health screening component of the Healthy Brain & Body Screenings held throughout the calendar year. At these events, a variety of screening tools measure for anxiety, depression, substance abuse and pain management. The screening provides a significant opportunity for former players to learn about helpful services, resources, benefits and avenues for treatment. Data and research cultivated from these screenings allows PCF to better understand the needs of former players while improving upon and innovating essential programming to enhance the quality of life for former players.
SOCIAL JUSTICE

The United States has long been scarred by the impact of blatant and systemic racism. For the past decade, The Player Care Foundation has been committed to improving the wellbeing of former players; our engagement efforts extend to all player irrespective of race or ethnicity, however the advocacy efforts of Foundation staff and board members were reenergized in the wake of the tragic events of 2020. Members of this working group began exploring and will continue to discover how to better support our former players while educating others about their experience. Through innovative enterprises, the Racial Equity Committee will continue supporting the advancement of all Black and Brown former players. The PCF board members have expressed support for this social justice initiative and appreciate the impact of implicit racism and bias on the health and well-being of the former players we serve. Included below are personal statements from many of them about this issue.

“This is such an important endeavor for the Foundation as we try to better understand how society and various environments have impacted our African American players. There’s a story behind every application we consider. While the NFL has come a long way in its social justice efforts, we need to keep addressing this issue and pressing forward. We need to keep the conversations going and continue feeding off of the energy of our nation’s young people.”

I have been fortunate to come from a multigenerational medical family. I grew up understanding that kind of achievement and profession was obtainable. As a minority in my hometown, I was shown there are non-racist environments and given a wonderful foundation. Prejudicial opinions throughout my life have not held me back. Through the eyes of my patients over the years, I have seen how sports, especially at the professional level, allow for skin color to be considered secondary to a superior ability. Sometimes with former athletes, starting that second life is someone’s first exposure to the racism that exists in this country – and it can be quite a shock. We are all products of our experience and while our society is not equal, we can never give up on people. We must continue moving forward.

“I watched Congressman John Lewis’s funeral service today, and I have found myself tearful during the past six days since his passing. I reflected on ‘Bloody Sunday’ and how he devoted his life to fighting for civil rights. In 1965, he marched for voting rights and crossed the Edmund Pettus Bridge, a bridge named after a Confederate general and Grand Dragon of the Ku Klux Klan, in Selma, Alabama. ‘Bloody Sunday’ ended with nonviolent protestors being injured by law enforcement officials while advocating for civil rights. It is timely and germane to what is happening today; people are still sustaining injuries from peacefully protesting for rights that we already had—then and now. These images stick with me and reflect the evil and hatred of a place and time.

I crossed Monument Avenue [in Richmond, VA] for three years in high school. I saw horseback statues idolizing enslavers every day. Whatever freedom defined by law wasn’t defined by heart. I remember the first time I was called the N-word. I was 16 and had just crossed Monument Avenue on my home from school. A white boy, 7 or 8 years old, called me the N-word twice. I can’t help but think about that boy growing up and becoming the police officer who casually kneeled on George Floyd’s neck until he died. When I began my NFL career, all blacks had to sit in the upper deck for games. The racism was palpable, especially in Birmingham, Alabama and Jackson, Mississippi. Whites viewed us as filth; if eyes could kill, I would have been dead 1,000 times. I had an undetected, subdural hematoma my first year in the NFL. I was unconscious for 2 hours due to a torn blood vessel. That condition empowered me to say no to certain things. I became a better advocate for myself and took strong positions. It changed the way I played the game and elongated my career. It helped me to decipher ‘good trouble’ as described by the late congressman.

To young men in sports, remember that one day you will become a former player. Know when to use ‘no’ to protect your tomorrow. It is not limiting, but rather expansive. You have power. Also, remember that being the best athlete you can be and honing your craft are important. However, sportsmanship does not acknowledge the breadth of who you are as a man. A commitment to family and your education transcends sports.

“The Player Care Foundation has been a true partner and resource for the Pro Football Hall of Fame. We find comfort in the services and even more in the individuals that are the backbone of PCF. Each year so many Hall of Famers receive the best care, testing and financial support with such ease.

This year I was honored to help the PCF staff with the planning of the first annual Best of Brunch fundraiser held in Canton, Ohio during Enshrinement. Many of the Hall of Famers attended to show their support and appreciation for all the amazing care that not only they receive but also their spouses.

NFL LEGENDS COMMUNITY

The NFL Legends Community was launched by the National Football League in July 2013 with the objective of celebrating, educating, embracing, and connecting former players with each other, their former teams and the League. These Legends played various positions for multiple teams throughout different eras and are passionate about serving their former teammates.

Internally aligned by the NFL League Office to ensure collaboration with various departments, the NFL Legends Community does not compete with other alumni associations or programs. The Legends Community hosts hospitality and networking events and communicates monthly through the Legends Community newsletter, their social accounts (Instagram/Twitter: @nfllegends and Private Facebook Group), and the NFL Legends Podcast (available on Spotify and Apple).

Through its continued support, the NFL Player Care Foundation has provided assistance to several former players in need, expanded its footprint within all 32 NFL clubs, and identified regional points of contact through its Directors across the country.
